NOTES FROM WASHINGTON.
(Special Correspondence.)
A Pathetic Eviction—Galusha A. Grow of Pennsylvania, who was a member of Congress 50 years ago and later speaker of the house of representatives of the civil war congress, has been forced to leave the hotel that has been his home in Washington for over half a century. The hotel in question is the old Willard, a famous hostelry, now called the Fairfax, to distinguish it from the New Willard, and which will soon be torn down to make room for an addition to the latter structure. Mr. Grow was visibly affected as he passed for the last time through the doorway of the old hotel which has been his Washington home for so long. A room on the same floor and in the same location as his old room, when the new structure is completed has been promised to Mr. Grow.
Scrappy Senators—The closing hours of the session of Congress were enlivened in the Senate by a personal attack of Senator Bailey of Texas upon Senator Beveridge of Indiana similar in many respects to the famous fist fight that occurred in the same chamber on Washington's birthday of the present year between Senators Tillman and McLaurin of South Carolina. No blows were struck, but, according to Mr. Bailey, he first threatened his colleague from Indiana and then choked him fiercely until dragged away by Senator Spooner of Wisconsin and the sergeant-at-arms of the senate. According to Senator Spooner, Mr. Beveridge was not choked at all, and the senator from Texas did not lay his hand upon him. There is a direct conflict of testimony, therefore, as to whether any choking took place, but it is significant that all of the senators present agree with the statement of Senator Spooner that no assault was made.
Flooded with Cash—At the end of the fiscal year which closed Monday the available cash balance in the United States treasury is larger than ever before in the history of the government. It stands at $208,630,022. The excess of receipts over expenditures for the year is also very large, the treasury surplus of $92,193,390 being larger than in any year since 1888, and exceeded in only ten years since the foundation of the government. In nearly every one of these ten years the revenues of the government had been swelled by extraordinary taxation to meet the expenditures of a past war period. At this time, also the general fund in the treasury is enormously larger than ever before, the amount being more than $289,000,000 as against about $158,000,000 one year ago. The United States government now has a stock of gold in the treasury believed to be larger than any similar stock anywhere in the world. The amount of gold coin, bullion and certificates in the treasury is $608,173,412. Added to this is gold in circulation throughout the country which raises the total amount to not less than $1,200,000,000.
After Vindication—Major Rathbone who was recently released from a Cuban prison, where he was confined for alleged complicity in the postal frauds, has given out the following written statement: "Major Estes G. Rathbone, former director-general of the posts of Cuba, desires it to be made public that since he has been in this country various newspaper interviews have contained statements seeming to come from him which do him an injustice. Some of them are errors in fact and others are faulty inferences drawn from known conditions. He regards these misrepresentations as having been inadvertently made, but they nevertheless do him an injustice. His purpose at this time is to have an investigation by congress which will disclose all the facts regarding his conduct in Cuba, and not revenge on any person or persons who may have injured him."
President's Palatial Yacht—The United States ship Mayflower, which has been made perhaps the handsomest yacht in the world, for the use of the president, has had about $100,000 expended on her. He will probably sail on her to the West Indies to observe the evolutions of the three consolidated squadrons under Admiral Dewey. Early in 1898, when the war was imminent with Spain, the vessel was purchased by the government, and was one of the first used as an auxiliary cruiser. When first overhauled the beautiful interior fittings, such as bath tubs of solid marble, silk tapestry paneling, decorations and carvings were left undisturbed, except where required to be torn out to provide crew accommodations. The original state rooms were left intact, providing commodious quarters for her officers. The interior finish is in pure white enamel, with just a touch of gilt. The walls are in tapestry, as originally, and numerous panels of metal fabric are fitted for decoration and ventilation combined. The president's quarters include a living cabin, dining cabin, smoking room, reception room, library, lavatories and a guests' room. The floors are laid in hard wood, highly polished; the furniture is of the best, without being extravagant. Electric lights abound, there being a large storage battery on board to provide for the running of electric fans, for lights where desired and for other purposes where required at night without the noise due to running an electric plant. On the whole, the president's quarters are such as might be expected of a suite in the best equipped hotel, and the size and stability of the vessel is such as to insure comfort not far below what might be expected on an ocean liner.

FUSSINESS A MODERN DISEASE:
Many People Do Not Know How to Let Well Alone.
We have only to invert the telescope in order to find the civilian from his writing table at home carefully endeavoring to instruct the soldier in his duties regardless alike of military methods and of local conditions. Other examples of a like nature might be quoted, but the foregoing will suffice to direct attention to a quality of mind which appears to be increasingly prevalent among a certain class of writers and talkers and which cannot be regarded as a sign of healthy social life. It is not vigilance or prudence or deliberate and considered judgment; it is not even a natural and rational anxiety, though it may exhibit itself in the guise of any one of these. It is mere fussiness. Serving in itself no profitable purpose, it mingles with and impedes every useful work, damping energy and discouraging initiative and the sense of responsibility in those engaged in it. All the while it may be preaching moderation, patience and self-control.
This neurosis is not confined to any people or part of the civilized world, though it seems to be more prevalent in some quarters than elsewhere. Wherever there exists a suitable soil in the form of an intellect equipped with the visual organs of education, but without corresponding reflective power and self-restraint, there the morbid germ develops until it may even become epidemic over a wide area. We have already noticed some of its manifestations and have referred to the instability of will and the incoordinated action which are its natural consequences. In these circumstances its effective treatment is obviously most desirable. Fortunately it is a true functional disorder, and there is no reason to regard it as incurable. If only the exciting cause be frankly recognized and grappled with, much will have been done towards providing a remedy. In order to arrive at a successful result, however, it is necessary to begin by admitting that scrutiny in technical matters, even by those whom it may concern, may be overdone.
It matters little whether it be carried out by a subordinate government official, by an over-zealous pressman, or by a private individual more eager than judicious; if superfluous, the effect is the same. To let well alone is an axiom synonymous with sound practice. To say that details of matters not belonging to the province of common knowledge should be left in the hands of selected and competent persons is another way of expressing the same truth. The contrary method, that of prying and open-mouthed publicity, is incompatible with successful business, with the public service and with the very desirable extinction of the alarmist neurosis.—The Lancet.
Book Lovers and Their Wives.
In a casual summary of matrimonial relations woman is generally supposed to be the abused member of the partnership, but bookstore clerks tell another story.
"You haven't any idea," said the black-eyed girl in the old-book shop, "what a brow-beaten set of men nearly all our customers are. When a literary woman comes in here and buys an old book or any number of old books, she always has them wrapped up, and marches off with them, 'as bold as brass,' as the old saying goes. But our men patrons—well, such a scared and craven lot as they are."
"Only yesterday a man bought a lovely old three-volume set of books—he paid $15 for them, and they were cheap at that. But he didn't take them all away with him—he didn't dare to—that he would carry them home one volume at a time—and perhaps he could sneak them into his library without getting caught at it. Then another literary man who buys a good many old books from us never will have his books wrapped up. He says that his wife always pounces on him if he brings home a bundle of wrapped-up books; one book in each coat pocket, or a single book under his arm will not always attract her attention. In that way, he says, he has smuggled in half the old books he owns; but a package of books invariably irritates her dreadfully."
"I'm sorry for the men who love old books," concluded the girl; "they all have such tyrannical wives."—Detroit Free Press.
When Mountain Climbing Began.
Now that Cecil Rhodes has established the poetry and romance of the Matoppes it is worth recalling how very modern is this love of mountains and mountain scenery. Even till the eighteenth century was more than half-tenth century rugged grandeur was regarded with superstitious awe on the one hand, and with entire indifference on the other. For Europeans the Alps stood as typical; yet it was not till 1786 that the summit of Mont Blanc was reached by Jacques Balmot, tempted by the reward offered by M. de Saussure, who himself made the expedition the following year in silk coat, silver buttons and smart shoes,—so little was mountaineering understood. But it was not till after 1851, the year when Albert Smith, having climbed Mont Blanc, gave a popular entertainment at the Egyptian Hall concerning his experiences that the great rush of tourists to Mont Blanc and the Alps began. Whereas between 1786 and 1850 there were only fifty-seven ascents, and then mostly for scientific purposes, from 1852 to 1857 there were sixty-four ascents, and the Alpine Club, started in 1858, became an inevitable corollary.—London Chronicle.
The social climber is not restricted to any particular crime.

A package of ashes from Mont Pelee has been received by Representative Landis of Indiana from his brother, Walter K. Landis, who is postmaster at San Juan, Porto Rico. With the packages comes a letter which states: "I would give $100 if you could have been with me on the stern of the Potomac down at St. Pierre last Monday when we ran to sea from an eruption on Mont Pelee. It was the most magnificent spectacle that the eye of man ever beheld, and for a time there seemed an even chance that whatever life insurance there was in the party might be cashed in. I went from San Juan on the Sterling with relief stores for the sufferers. At Fort de France I met your friend, Consul Ayme, and he secured a permit for me to go on the Potomac with the party that went to St. Pierre to get the remains of the American consul, Mr. Prentiss. We were driven out of town twice by volcanic eruptions. The situation became so critical that the sailors dropped the casket and we ran into the sea to our necks to reach the rowboats, which had refused to beach for us."—Washington Star.

THESE "ABANDONED FARMS."

These abandoned farms in northern New Hampshire of which we have heard so much, are being once more occupied and cultivated for all they are worth. Old Home week, thanks to ex-Governor Hullins, has brought back many a wandering son to these too long neglected lands. Since it has been learned through experience, that best of schoolmasters, that it isn't every college graduate who outstrips in the race of life, the boy who was left at home to work the farm, and to be a support and help to the father and mother in their declining years, there has been a turning of the steps backward to the old home. Within the past five years there has been many a farm in the Granite state taken up again, and the good work still goes on. We know something about these abandoned farms, for it has been our good fortune to reside upon one for the past two summers. A near friend of ours purchased two years ago the place which he has christened Kinderheim. The farm, which contains somewhere near a hundred acres of land, had been exhausted by taking all that it was possible to get from it, while giving it nothing in return. The buildings were old and fast going to wreck and ruin at the time of purchase. But no sooner had he the deed of his newly bought property, than he went to work with a will to put things into shape; so that now after so short a time, he and his family have one of the most convenient and comfortable homes in northern New Hampshire. The house has been substantially rebuilt. There is a large ice house well filled from a pond of his own excavating; a bath and wash house, which he has had erected. His barn made over anew is a model of convenience, while his sap-house is a necessary and ornamental annex to his beautiful maple grove. This resuscitated farm has now a garden with all the vegetable growths, and an acre of potatoes which promise a full harvest. The hay crop this year will be more than an average one. Michael, the farm hand, says that it is "fine" to work in the garden and among the potatoes, with the mountains all about him while the birds are singing from every bush and tree. We write this much of our friends' whole life on an abandoned New Hampshire farm, to show more clearly what is being done throughout New England in recovering lands long gone to waste. The owner himself is here but a small portion of his time, as his business life keeps him in the city. But he is being paid a thousand times over for his more or less frequent visits to his country home, and from the fact that his family have a little earthly paradise of their own for the summer months. The tilling of the ground is the natural condition of things. There is an intimate relationship between the man, "earthy," and the earth, so it is especially fitting that man should handle the hoe and swing the scythe. It will be most fortunate for both city and country when the metropolis shall rid herself of her excessive numbers by giving to the soil the manual labor which is its due. Why will men and women persist in herding, when they may go into the country and establish little kingdoms of their own?

There are still New Hampshire farms, inviting those of the city to come and occupy them.

IT CANNOT BE SAID.

It cannot be rightfully said of congress in its last session, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." A long list of wicked failures must now be written down by the American people against the last session of our national legislature. It has hardly accomplished anything that it promised to do. This must be the verdict of all those who are not slaves to party lines. The recommendations of President Roosevelt have been substantially ignored. No action was taken in relation to trusts. The shipping bill had no show. Cuban reciprocity was treated with the utmost injustice, and

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Board of Survey.
A petition has been received from Wm. Millett for the approval of plans as to the contemplated laying out or locating and constructing the streets or ways in the town of Arlington, designated at Summer street, Iansdowne road, Rockland avenue and Millett street.

Under the provisions of chapter 249 of the Acts of 1897, a hearing will be given on said petition in the selectmen's room, Monday, July 14, 1902, at 8 o'clock p. m.

so on largely to the end of the chapter. Why should not our public servants be held to a strict accountability for their non-performance of duty? It is refreshing that now and then a man is to be found in congress who has the courage and the honesty, in spite of all party affiliations, manfully to face a duty and then without an apology, perform it. Representative McCall of Winchester is such a man, and so is Senator Hoar of Worcester. It is with especial pleasure that The Enterprise recognizes in its near neighbor, Representative McCall, a man of unusual ability, and of that consummate honesty that cannot be lessened, either by threat or promise. Mr. McCall's whole course in congress in relation to Cuba and the Philippines has been in keeping with the soundest and best statesmanship. It doesn't matter what disgruntled ones of his party may say, the people will give him the scriptural, "Well done." Fortunate would it be if our country had more men like Representative McCall and Senator Hoar. That there is a day of reckoning coming no reasonable man can well doubt. The American government stands for justice, and the American people will see that justice is finally done, "though the heavens fall."

ARLINGTON LOCALS.

E. C. Woods, with a score of 37, won the medal play of 27 holes, 9 best to count, on the links of the Arlington golf club last week Friday afternoon. Other scores were: H. B. Hood 38, J. H. Hardy 43, G. M. Brooks 43.

Saturday was the last day of the cup match on the Arlington golf links, and R. Dunbar won the cup with a total of 15 points. The score:

	Gross.	H'd.p.	Net
G. O. Russell	99	15	84
C. A. Hardy	113	16	97
R. Dunbar	101	13	88
G. M. Brooks	99	10	89

By Saturday's play Russell scored three points, Hardy two and Dunbar one, the latter thus winning the point he needed to win the cup. Hardy and Brooks secured 13 points each, and Russell 10.

The first individual championship tournament of the Greater Boston interscholastic golf association was held on the course of the Brae-Burn golf club, Newton, beginning Tuesday morning and concluding Thursday afternoon.

G. H. Gray, Arlington high; J. C. Gray, Arlington high; R. Dunbar, Arlington high; R. Grover, Arlington high; F. Buhlert, Arlington high; N. L. Cushman, Arlington high, were entered. Cushman was on the tournament committee.

Henry D. Kidder of Addison street won first place in the quarter-mile race on Boston common the Fourth. At West Scituate in the afternoon he took third place in the quarter-mile and first in the running broad jump, at the Broadway recreation grounds. Saturday's Herald had an excellent picture of him with a sketch of his athletic career.

Many Arlington people will take in the annual lawn party given in aid of the Holy Ghost hospital for incurables this afternoon and evening on the hospital grounds. In the afternoon there will be special features for children, and dancing and music in the evening. Miss Julia O'Brien has charge of the Arlington branch table.

The game between the Eureka and the South Boston failed to come off. The Boat club fireworks the Fourth were supplied by the Arlington News agency.

Messrs. Thompson and Young sent up some excellent fireworks the night of the Fourth.

Thursday night of last week a good-sized crowd in front of the postoffice building raised sums of money by subscription and "blew them in" in various sorts of appropriate noises. Everybody had a good time.

Two watchmen were detailed to guard the old high school building on Academy street the night before the Fourth.

The mail box at the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Pleasant street was blown up by a cannon firecracker last week Thursday night as one of the patriotic "stunts" of the "night before." How little Uncle Sam appreciated the outburst of patriotism was evidenced by his sending on inspectors and officers for an investigation. But as much as it was plainly apparent that the act was one of heedlessness and not of criminal intent, the matter was not pushed.

The fires of the "night before" were four in number: From box 162 at 1.45 a. m., a small shed on the Wyman estate; at 3.15 there was a small fire in a hen-house on the Henderson estate, Teel street, damage about $20; from box 41, at 2.10, a barn belonging to Timothy Hurley, 894 Massachusetts avenue, loss about $500, insurance $3300; and from box 15, at 3.58, the wash-house of John P. Squires, loss $200. These fires are all credited to an incendiary origin.

A bad break in the water pipe on Massachusetts avenue between Marathon and Teel streets occurred the Fourth. Monday was a day of disasters. In the afternoon, as Miss Katherine Needham, and Miss Rosenberg of Cambridge were driving down Massachusetts avenue in an open run-about the forward axle broke. This happened just above Bartlett avenue. One of the forward wheels also came off, and the accident set the horse off on the run. At Academy st. the young ladies were thrown out, Miss Needham receiving several cuts about the head and face and Miss Rosenberg escaping with some bruises. They were taken into Mrs. G. A. Law's, where Miss Needham's injuries were attended to. A few stitches were necessary. The horse ran all the way to North Cambridge before being stopped.

The second of a series of weekly band concerts was held Thursday evening. Music by the Cambridge City band.

A Chinese lawn sociable will be given next Monday night by Trinity chapel chorus of the Arlington Line Bible school at the home of J. E. Fernald, 39 Clarendon avenue, North Cambridge. It will commence at 7.45. Refreshments will be on sale. Tickets 10 cents.

A. B. C. Notes.

Lloyd came in second in the novice single sculls on the Charles river last week Friday. The race had to be rowed a second time because of the fouling at the turn of Flanagan and Hayes, two other contestants, and the consequent protest by Hayes. Lloyd led all the way home in the first race, taking second place in the row-off.

The best club met its first defeat of the season Saturday afternoon at the hands of the Wellington team. Dresser was in the box for the visitors and won his own game by his pitching and all-around play. The score:

	Innings.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Wellington	.....	2	4	0	0	1	0	0	1	—8
A. B. C.	.....	1	4	0	0	0	0	0	1	—6

The night before the Fourth was celebrated by many members at the club house. The Kentucky carnival orchestra played a varied program of lively music and there was plenty of fun going on.

The evening of the Fourth a large crowd of ticket-holders occupied seats on the piazzas, roofs and floats of the house to witness an excellent display of fireworks. These were set off from a float anchored some hundred feet from the shore. The banks of the pond were also crowded with people and every available boat and canoe was in use. Custer's orchestra gave a good program of popular music. After the fireworks the young folk danced until 12 in the hall of the club house. Delicious punch was served throughout the evening. The committee in charge comprised E. L. Rankin, E. C. Mansfield, C. H. Carter and E. Heselstine.

The ball game with the A. A. A.'s the Fourth went to the Boat club team by 15 to 7. Shean's pitching was the chief feature.

This afternoon's game will be with the Glenwoods of Cambridge.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS.

The name of Ethel Ober, a member of the 6th grade of the Locke school, was omitted accidentally from the roll of honor last week. During the past three years she has been absent but a few days, because of sickness.

It was a delightful service which was held at Park avenue church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, closing with the observance of the communion.

GAFFNEY-WOOSTER.

Miss Louisa May Wooster, daughter of Mrs. Caroline Louisa Wooster of Lexington, and granddaughter of the late William H. Mason, was married Wednesday evening to Charles Everett Gaffney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gaffney of Gloucester. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. A.
Staples, and took place at the Hancock Congregational church at 8 o'clock. The bride was given away by her uncle, F. V. Wooster of Winchester. Miss Mary Adams Fassett of Nashua, N. H., a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were the Misses Gertrude and Cora Ball of East Lexington. David R.
Drake of Danvers was best man. The ushers were F. A. Tibbetts of Providence, William Parsons of Boston,
Harry Woodman of Gloucester, Benjamin C. Wooster, the bride's brother, A. W. D. Burnham of Nashua, and William Hunt of Lexington. The bride wore a beautiful gown of cream white crepe de chine, made with an embroidered chiffon yoke and chiffon trimmings, with the customary veil. She carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. The maid of honor wore white muslin with a pink sash and pink trimmings, and carried a large bouquet of pink sweet peas. The dresses of the bridesmaids were of dotted silk muslin over pink, with bouquets of pink sweet peas.

The Episcopal service with one ring was used. The wedding procession started promptly at 8 o'clock, and marched to the altar to the strains of the Lohengrin march, played by Miss David of Arlington. After the ceremony was ended the organist rendered the Mendelssohn march. The church was very prettily decorated, the work having been carried out under the direction of Mrs. William Hunt by friends of the bride, among them nine of her most intimate girl friends.
The chancel was massed with green, banked on both sides with wild asters, and with palms for foreground. A bell of white wild asters and ferns was hung from above. There were large masses of sweet peas in front, and the choir rail was trimmed with ferns and sweet peas. Bunches of the latter were upon the chandeliers.
Bouquets of ferns, meadow rue and sweet peas were at each pew.

After the wedding a reception was held at the house for friends and relatives of whom some 150 were present.
The newly married couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Wooster and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gaffney. The reception lasted from 8.30 till 10. Hardy catered. The grounds were brightly illuminated by Japanese lanterns strung about. Mr. and Mrs. Gaffney left at about 9.45, amidst a shower of confetti, for an extended wedding trip.
They will return to Newton in the fall where they will reside. Mr. Gaffney is principal of the Wade school, Newton Upper Falls. The presents made an elegant display, there being cut glass, silver in profusion, vases, pictures, bric-a-brac, a beautiful rug from nine girl friends of the bride, and a handsome silver service from her uncle, F. V. Wooster.

MRS. EUNICE JANE HARRIS.

Mrs. Eunice Jane Harris, nee Bowles, died at the home of her nephew, Officer W. B. Foster, Friday, July 4. Born in 1809, she was at the time of her death one of the oldest of Lexington townfolk, being 93 years and 17 days old. She had but recently passed her 93rd birthday.
She was born in Portsmouth, N. H., April 26, 1835. She was married to Elbridge Harris, who was for 20 years superintendent of the Bangor, Old Town, and Milford railroad. The greater part of her married life was spent in Bangor, Me. Later, moving west, Mr. Harris engaged in business in Minnesota, and at the opening of the civil war died. They had one child, a son, who was drowned at Bangor when but 15 years of age.
After her husband's death, Mrs. Harris returned east, coming to Massachusetts to make her home with her nephew, Officer Foster, in whose family she remained a cherished member for 20 years. The funeral services were held at the house Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev.
L. D. Cochrane. Interment will ultimately be made in Mount Auburn cemetery, the remains having been placed temporarily in the cemetery at the center.

Mrs. Harris was confined to her bed for three months before her death. Up to the time of her accident, which occurred when she was about 84 years of age, she had led a very active, busy life, and was always regular in her attendance at church.

LEXINGTON LOCALS.

Members of Post 119 and W. R. C.
No. 97, went on a trolley trip and basket picnic to Lake Quinsigamond, near Worcester, Thursday, leaving Lexington by special car at 7.50 a. m. in the rain. Arriving at Bedford a vote was taken as to continuing in despite of the weather. All but two or three voted to go on. These returned, and the rest, some 60 in all, went on their way rejoicing, and hoping for clear ing weather.

The annual lawn party of St.
Brigid's parish will be held on the church grounds Saturday, July 26, beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and continuing until 11 o'clock. Refreshments will be served. There will be sports in the afternoon and dancing in the evening from 7 until 11. Admission prices are 25 cents and 15 cents for children.

The Old Belfry club is spending some quiet weeks at present, but its schedule book for next winter is already pretty well filled, and a big season is promised.

The Lexington Orchestral club met at the Kindergarten, Forest street,
Wednesday evening.

The fire department had not a single call for the Fourth.

Monday Officer McGuire had John
McKenzie in court for drunkenness.
McKenzie was fined $5, which he paid.
John Snell was taken to court Wednesday for a similar offense, and being fined $5 was jailed, as he was unable to pay.

John McGurney and Patrick Mulvey had some trouble the night of the Fourth, on the Hayes place, of which Mulvey has leased some pasture land.
Words passed, and Mulvey accuses Mc-Gurney of having assaulted him. The case was tried in court yesterday, the charge being assault and battery.

The Baptist picnic, scheduled to come off some time ago, was postponed until Thursday on account of the rain it was put over until yesterday. A goodly company of picnickers went to Hobbs' camp on the Concord river.

The Fourth of July, 1902, in Lexington was a day remarkable in itself, and probably unique as compared with the rest of the country. There was an abundance of fireworks, crackers, torpedoes and all the other means and instruments for making a racket, and all the small boys and girls, and such of the larger as cared to join in, had a first rate good time, by all accounts, and yet there was not even one complaint of mischief or damage or injury in any way connected with the day's celebration. Chief Franks, speaking of the matter, said that he wished to express his thanks and good will to everybody, boys and girls and all, for the good conduct of every one on that day. It was a condition which probably could not be duplicated in the country. There was a plenty of fireworks and fire crackers, even more than usual, and yet no complaint of mischief or damage or injury either in the day time or at night.

A party of a dozen young folk from

INSTRUCTIONS.

Before giving an alarm be sure a fire exists.

Give the alarm at the nearest box.

Pull the hook way down, only once, and let go.

Never give an alarm for a fire seen at a distance.

Wait at the box, if possible, and direct the firemen to the fire.

Never give a second alarm for the same fire; all second alarms are given by the engineers or other persons in authority.

Never give an alarm for a brush fire unless buildings are in danger; but inform the engineers and they will take action to extinguish it.

Citizens are requested to inform themselves as to the location of keys. Signs over the boxes will give the necessary information.

CAUTION TO PERSONS HAVING KEYS.

Never open boxes except to give an alarm.

You cannot remove your key until an engineer releases it, and it will then be returned to you.

Never allow the key out of your possession except to some responsible party, for the purpose of giving an alarm, when it is then returned.

If you remove from your place of residence or business, return the key to the engineer.

ANIMALS' SUMMER GARB.

WHEN FURRED AND FEATHERED CREATURES CHANGE ATTIRE.

Some Dress in Accordance With Their Age—Costume Depends on Climate—Thick Wraps of Winter Give Way to Something Cooler.

It seems almost a pity that it did not occur to Herr Teufelsdröckh, when he enriched the empire of thought by his famous "Philosophy of Clothes," to add a few remarks on the summer garb of animals; for in the reasons which lead so many furred and feathered creatures to change their attire once at least in every year the learned professor might have found ample material for deep musing.

Many of these animals, of course, merely moult, throwing off the old coat for no other purpose than to put on a new one. In some cases they do it by degrees, as every one knows who has enjoyed a ride in a dog cart behind a white pony. In others the change is more rapid. Witness the annual peeling of sheep which are never shorn. But no matter how long the toilet may last in such cases, the fashion never varies.

Other creatures dress in accordance with their age. They seem to hold strongly that costumes suited to juveniles are out of place in the case of adults. So lion cubs are brindled like tabby cats, and cygnets are clothed in smoky-gray instead of in white. Certain sea birds are even more particular, for their young are called upon to wear four successive changes of raiment, equally different from one another and from the plumage which denotes maturity. This last plan must be a great convenience to parents who find it difficult to remember the ages of their offspring. They have only to glance at the feathers of the little ones in order to know.

Far more frequently, however, the summer change of costume depends upon climate. The thick wraps of winter have to give way to something cooler and lighter; so the ermine, towards the middle of spring, is metamorphosed into a stoat, and remains a stoat until the latter part of autumn.

It is hard to realize that the costly fur which marks the judicial dignity, which peers of high degree are proud to wear has been stripped from an animal included by every gamekeeper in his list of "vermin." Yet such is in truth the case. In northern countries, where the temperature for months together is a minus quantity, they become yellow in autumn and perfectly white a few weeks later, the muzzle and tip of the tail alone excepted, while in spring and early summer they pass again through yellow back into reddish brown.

Arctic foxes follow their example—partly, perhaps, for the sake of warmth, dark clothes being better conductors of heat than light ones of the same thickness and quality. In winter they are as white as the driven snow itself, but in summer they become gray, or brown, or smoky blue, according to their individual idiosyncrasies. Nansen tells us in his "Farthest North" that the Arctic foxes were at times the plague of his life, not only invading his camp by night and carrying off every particle of food which they could find, but repeatedly stealing his thermometers. The reason for this larcenous behavior baffled the great explorer altogether; he could not understand what foxes could possibly want with scientific instruments. But their annual change of attire may explain it. No doubt the animals in question are keenly interested in the variations of temperature, and anxious above all things to know when it is time to think about putting on their summer clothing; and, of course, a thermometer would be a guide.

Among the birds the most notable change of plumage for climatic reasons is that of the ptarmigan. No one looking for the first time upon a ptarmigan in its summer costume, side by side with another in its winter dress, would dream that the two birds were identical. One is ashy gray, mottled and marbled with chestnut and black, the other is perfectly white. The reason is that ptarmigans in summer have to crouch among rocks which are covered with mosses and lichens, while in winter they sit upon snow, and nature dresses them to suit their surroundings. The resemblance in each case is exact. You might stare straight at a ptarmigan in summer from a dozen yards away and be utterly unable to distinguish it from the rocks, while in winter you would be equally unable to discern it upon the snow. And at the same time the bird has the satisfaction of being clothed in accordance with the thermometer.

The black headed gull, too, is black headed only in summer. All through the rest of the year its head and neck are as white as the rest of its body. The change takes place just about the time the birds desert the seashore for the great inland marshes in which they breed; and the odd thing is that no sort of moult is involved. The feathers slowly darken until they become almost black, and black they remain till the summer is over; then the dark hue gradually fades and in about a fortnight's time the birds are entirely white once more.

But a far more common reason for the summer change of clothing is the desire to look well in the eyes of the opposite sex. This desire is practically restricted to the males, who monopolize all beauty and color of form, and whose great idea of winning the affections of their soberly tinted mates is to strut in brave array before them. The palm in this respect is borne away by the ruff. During the autumn, the winter and the first two or three weeks of spring this bird is one of the most insignificant of the feathered race. But no sooner does its fancy lightly turn to thoughts of love than it dons a special costume in which to go a-courting. Its bill becomes orange-yellow, instead of brown; the whole of its plumage seems to brighten. A tuft of long feathers grows on either side of the neck, and the throat is swathed in a mass of dense plumes, which are always gay of hue, but are differently colored in every individual. Then the bird pades slowly up and down before the particular lady on whom his affections are set. Other gallants, equally desirous to please, do the same, and the natural result is a row. Day after day ruffs meet by dozens to fight, while the reeves look calmly on. Plumes are torn and feathers fly, till half the combatants, perhaps, own themselves worsted. Then the gentle beings for whose sweet sake the battle has been waged bestow themselves upon the conquerors, and ruff and reeve go happily off together to enter upon the joys of matrimony.

Mallards adopt similar tactics—bar the fighting—when they feel the pangs of the tender passion coming on, but can scarcely be said to play fairly; for no sooner has their gayety of plumage had the desired effect and won for them partners of their joys and sorrows than they throw off their brilliant garb and appear in the sombre plumage of their mates. One cannot but feel sorry for the ducks, who choose their suitors purely for their good looks, only to find immediately that their beauty is not even skin deep.—The Rev. Theodore Wood, Naturalist, in the New York American and Journal.

Uncommon "Common Jury."

What is known as a "common" jury was empaneled recently in Mr. Justice Bigham's Court. It was really a most uncommon one.

Sixty-two jurymen named Clark, or Clarke, answered to their names in the fifth court of the King's Bench Division.

The amazing number of Clarks and Clarkes caused a loud laugh in court, and by way of selecting just enough for a jury the clerk associate called on "George Clark."

About twenty of the sixty-two gentlemen answered to this Christian name, so the associate clerk proceeded to select a few specimens, and a jury was ultimately made up of the following:

Benjamin Clark, plumber.
George Clark, clerk.
George Clark, clerk.
John Clark, builder.
John W. C. Clark, manager.
Joseph C. Clark, ivory worker.
Thomas M. Clark, clerk.
George Clarke, stick dresser.
Stephen Clarke, furrier.
Swan Clarke, builder.
G. H. Clarkson.

This mass meeting of the Clarks and the Clarkes was generally regarded as being a carefully-prepared joke on the part of the Sheriff of Middlesex.

The whole panel hailed from the neighborhood of Hackney. The only two remaining jurymen on the panel not named Clark or Clarke were both named Coster.

In Mr. Justice Grantham's court the other day eleven Browns and one Brownings occupied the jury box. Have the Smiths ever made up a whole jury?—London Mail.

An Old Boat Excavated at St. Louis.

In excavating on the site of the World's Fair in St. Louis, workmen have discovered an old boat, which must have been buried there many years. It is built of zinc and copper from stem to stern, with only here and there a fragment of wood. It has a length of some twenty feet, a depth of perhaps five feet, and a width of six feet. That it could ever have been used on the River des Peres, excepting in seasons of high water, is thought impossible. It has the appearance of having been made for use on the sea, and is so large and heavy that it cannot be readily associated with the neighborhood in which it now lies. It has been entirely buried, with the exception of a few inches of the bow, which rose higher than any other point. Its grave was on a high bank close to a bend in the River des Peres. Workmen finding the bow projecting from the ground, had their curiosity aroused, and called the attention of Chief of Construction Isaac S. Taylor to their discovery. He investigated and had a detail put to work unearthing the craft. No one can offer any suggestion as to the history of the craft. The ground about it was packed, and had no indication of having been disturbed for many years. The name of the craft, which had evidently been stamped in the metal side, has been cut out. The bottom, near the bow, has been stove in by some cause, and was evidently the last chapter in the history of the boat.

Track-Laying by Machine.

A new machine for laying railroad tracks is being used in Pennsylvania. It has proved itself capable, with a crew of forty men, of putting down two miles of track in a day. The track-layer has a huge crane, sixty feet long, which projects forward over the road, and it hauls behind it a train of sixteen flat cars loaded with ties and rails. A continuous double line of the latter moves forward over rollers and carries the ties with it. Both rails and ties are seized at the proper point by the machinery and placed on the road in front of the train, where they shortly form part of the track over which it passes. This device is said to be the most rapid and the most economical mechanical track-layer invented.—Success.

Uncompromising.

"If I were not an Englishman," said the pompous Briton, patronizingly, "I should wish to be a Boer."

"Indeed!" replied the belligerent Boer, "and I, if I were not a Boer, would wish I was one."—Philadelphia Press.

Dividends in Health.

Give the children of the crowded quarters small parks and when they grow up they will pay big dividends on the cost in good health, good morals and good citizenship.

CURIOSITY OF HEREDITY.

Children of Old Parents Make Most Intelligent Men.

It is one of the curiosities of heredity that while the children of young parents are usually brighter than the children of old parents, the children of the old parents develop into the most intelligent men and women. A good illustration of this is to compare the savage races, which marry at a very early age, with the white race, which is the latest in marrying of all races.

Teachers in the Philippines, in Polynesia, and in Australia tell us that the dark-skinned children in their schools are brighter than the white children, yet we never look for great men among these races, and we would not find them if we did look.

All of the great men of the world, like Aristotle, Bacon, Cuvier and Franklin, have been sons of very old men. When eminent men like King David, the Catos of Rome, the elder William Pitt and certain branches of the Dana, Lee and Livingston families of America have sons late in life, the eminence is continued to the next generation, but when eminent men like Arkwright, Bulwer-Lytton, Cole-ridge, Cromwell, Peter the Great and Solomon have sons in early life, the eminence immediately disappears.

Another good illustration may be found in the British nobility. Each noble family begins with an eminent man, and the noble branch is continued down through the eldest son. It has been a frequently observed fact that the eminence is very rarely continued to the third generation, and usually disappears in the second. It is true that eminent men have been produced in these noble families, but during the 800 years in which the law of primogeniture has been in force every such case has come about through some accident which has eliminated the eldest of the eldest and has brought in some younger branch to inherit the title.

The conclusion to be drawn from this is that young men should not marry before they are 25. Neither should they remain old bachelors beyond 30. Unmarried people do not live as long as married people, and no creature is so miserable as an old bachelor with relatives.—Chicago Post.

Rather Absent-Minded.

It was the absent-minded girl of the senior class who was giving a tea to her visiting friends the other afternoon in the college parlors. "Tea or coffee?" she inquired absently of the tall young man who beamed down upon her as she faintly lifted the brass teakettle. "Coffee, if you please," was the reply, which suddenly reminded the girl that tea was the only beverage prepared for the occasion. Equal to the emergency, however, she smiled sweetly, poured a cup of fragrant tea, and with all the grace in the world handed it over to the young man, who was evidently too much enraptured to know whether he was sipping tea, coffee or ambrosia.—New York Sun.

POPULAR SCIENCE

F. G. Welchmann writes to Science that an analysis of a sample of mineral dust from the Martinique eruption—dust which fell on the ship Alessandro del Bueno, which was at the time about one hundred miles distant from the island—gave results as follows: Silica, 53.34 per cent.; sesquioxide of iron and aluminum, 30.68 per cent.; calcium oxide, 10.77 per cent.; magnesium oxide, 4.12 per cent.; sulphur, 0.7 per cent.; phosphorus, a trace. The powder is highly magnetic.

There is a plant in Holland known as the evening primrose, which grows to a height of five or six feet, and bears a profusion of large, yellow flowers, so brilliant that they attract immediate attention, even at a great distance. But the chief peculiarity about the plant is the fact that the flowers, which open just before sunset, burst into bloom so suddenly that they give one the impression of some material agency. A man who has seen this sudden blooming says it is just as if some one had touched the land with a wand and thus covered it all at once with a golden sheet.

Says the National Geographic Magazine: Glittering snowfields and vast glaciers now cover the summits of the mighty volcanic mountains of the western United States—Mt. Shasta, 14,350 feet; Mt. Ranier, 14,525 feet; Mt. Hood, 11,225 feet; and other noble peaks. One of the most remarkable of these extinct volcanoes is the well-known Mt. Mazama, in Oregon. The crater of Mt. Mazama is now occupied by a lake five to six miles in diameter. The lake is 6239 feet above the sea, is 1975 feet deep and surrounded by almost vertical walls, towering 900 to 2200 feet. This is the only crater lake in the United States.

We are in the habit of seeking the shade of a tree as a means of getting cool, but that is not the only power it has of reducing the temperature. On the same principle that a lump of ice will cool a glass of water a tree will cool the air around it, because its own temperature is uniformly about forty-five degrees; that is to say, the temperature of a tree as a body. This is little understood, perhaps, but it is a recognized scientific fact, and it adds much force to the argument in favor of planting trees in cities. A clump of trees is capable of making a material reduction in temperature. The woods, therefore, are cool, not only because they are shady, but because the trees are constantly fighting off the heat.

The scientific cause of a tornado's destructive effect is not generally understood. The effect is produced by different air-pressures. The normal air-pressure on all surfaces at sea level is 17.7 pounds for each square inch, or about 2117 pounds for each square foot. The pressure in the centre of a tornado, in the dark "funnel," is one-fourth lighter; that is to say, about 529 pounds lighter. Now, before a tornado reaches a house, the air-pressure on every square foot of wall, inside and out, and of roof and floor, is 2117 pounds, and as this pressure is exerted in every direction, it is not appreciable. But when the tornado comes the pressure on the outside of the house is suddenly reduced to the extent of 529 pounds, while the inside pressure remains unchanged. The inevitable result is an explosion from the inside. The walls and doors of a house under these circumstances are always blown outwards, not inwards.

Smoke and Health.

Probably one of the chief reasons for the indifference to the reform of the smoke nuisance is that most people think of the matter not as one of health but of esthetics. Manufacturers are so necessary, it is thought, that the ugliness of a smoky city can be endured, because of the utility of the results of coal burning. But nothing is easier than to prove that the smoke cloud over a manufacturing city tremendously increases the mortality. It has been calculated that in such a city a man inhales 37,000,000 germs in ten hours, and besides this some 10,000,000 of dust particles as compared with 31,000 of mountain air. The case against smoke, however, rests chiefly with another factor, the increase it causes of the carbon dioxide in the air. In the country there are about three parts of carbon dioxide to 10,000 in the air, and the limit for health in rooms is six, or, at most, ten. During fogs the amount is greatly increased, sometimes rising at high as fourteen and probably higher. When Pittsburgh burned natural gas it was free from dense and dark fogs. The great fog of 1880 in London increased the average mortality 2994 in three weeks, and that of 1892 caused an excess of 1484 deaths in one week.—American Medicine.

He Knew an American.

"Here, you little American girl, you pick up every piece of that paper!" was the command which a little visitor to Paris was surprised to receive from a policeman on the street. The child, who was with her mother, had torn a piece of paper into fragments and thrown them on the pavement. The embarrassed mother was obliged to stand by and see her little daughter, who had probably never before been asked to wait on herself, pick up every bit of the offending litter, while the officer watched the process as grimly as if guarding a housebreaker.—New York Tribune.

L. Burrill, P. O., North Lexington.

Ill nature reacts most upon the ill-natured.

CREATURES OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

That we all are largely creatures of circumstances is a very generally conceded fact, and a fact nowhere more clearly illustrated than here among the mountains. In a mountainous region everything moves slowly—no one is in a hurry. There is no morning train to catch. No one's pay is cut down if he happens to be five minutes late at his work. "Hurry up, there," is never heard in this north country. An enjoyable leisure is here manifested on every side. Men and women in Whiteface, and throughout all this section of country shape and mould their lives in harmony with these grand upheavals of nature, and so necessarily they take their time for it. They well understand that the world was not made in a day, so they are bound not to make any undue haste with whatever work they may have in hand. And to us this all means solid comfort. What a different life is this from the life in the suburbs of a great city! Just for a moment suppose that Arlington could take a day off whenever she chose so to do, and go fishing? But no, we must keep our noses continuously to the grindstone, or otherwise our rations will fall short; but here one does not depend upon the markets for his breakfast, for he has enough to eat and to spare constantly in store. Men and women here may more or less frequently be out of the latest style of hats, and out of dress suits, but all the while they have enough to eat. "Why," we said to a farmer yesterday, who was hoeing his little patch of potatoes along the riverside, "you ought to be the happiest people in the world," when he replied, "I reckon we do take more comfort than you do in Boston," and he was unquestionably right. The life of the metropolis and its suburbs is a good deal apart from nature. That life is of the hot-house kind. Everything there is at high pressure. To meet these farmers in their shirt-sleeves, and have a chat with them acts on one's tired spirits like an opiate. So restful is their whole manner of conversation. The truth is they have been born of these mountains, and by them have they been educated. This life-giving atmosphere has given them stomachs that can digest a good square meal, and hearts that maintain a regular beat. You hear of no smallpox scare in this region, so that vaccination never comes under discussion. We easily catch the calm and restful inspiration of this retreat of the gods and forever contented and happy would we be, could we live on indefinitely with our present environments. Here one eats well and sleeps well, while he has no anxious thought for the morrow. What more do you want? As a matter of fact, what more can you have?

THE EDITOR'S RUSTIC CHAIR.

The editor's rustic chair here at Kinderheim reminds one of the seat that Hawthorne so loved high up among the branches of that graceful elm near his Concord home; only ours is not high up in a noble elm, but has for its background four silver birches grown from one root, and enclosing a space of four square feet. Within this space is built a seat so near the ground that the editor when sitting has his feet comfortably resting upon solid earth, for he it known that the editor of The Enterprise, though short in stature, has legs long enough, as Abraham Lincoln facetiously put it, to reach to the floor. Now seated in this chair, in one of the most picturesque groves that can be imagined, with a trout brook running longside in the valley below, with no house in sight, and where no sound is heard, save that of the murmuring brook, and an occasional note of the wood thrush and where nothing is seen save the silvery waters and the grove itself with jutting glimpses of the skies overhead and the mountains roundabout we sensibly feel the inspiration of our unique surroundings. Here we have all nature at our command and she comes at our bidding. In this house "not made with hands," one should speak "with the tongue of men and angels," and at the same time be in full possession of that clarity "which hopeth all things and which endureth all things." At any rate the readers of The Enterprise need not be unduly surprised if we soon break forth into song from the editor's chair in the birchen grove alongside the brook at Kinderheim.

LEXINGTON LOCALS.

Paul Franks, Ernest Fessenden, Wallace Miller, Harold Chatfield, Morton Nourse and Richard Streeter went to Hobbs' camp on the Concord river Monday with Rev. F. A. Macdonald. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Franks, Mrs. Fuller, Mrs. Fessenden, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Chatfield and Mrs. Packard paid them a visit, and took supper with them. The boys are having a jolly time and the mothers report unusually enormous appetites.

The Misses Margaret and Agnes Tupper sailed this week for Halifax. They will spend the summer months with their parents in Nova Scotia.

Chief Franks and Bradford Smith of the board of health made an inspection Tuesday of the sanitary conditions on Muzzey street, as a result of complaints of a bad odor existing at times. The decision reached was that it is due entirely to fertilizer used on the meadows, and noticed occasionally when the direction of the wind is right.

Chief Franks also inspected the sanitary condition of the Hancock school Thursday afternoon.

The selectmen recently ordered the removal of one of the elm trees at the corner of Waltham street and the avenue. The taking down has been in process this week by the street commissioners. Some bother was experienced from the live wires. The tree was partly taken down Wednesday, but the work was interrupted by the rain Thursday morning.

Catch basins are being put in at this corner to take care of the overflow surface water.

A cellar for coal storage has been excavated under Munroe's station.

Miss Edith Cox will go Monday to Oakledge, East Harpswell, Me., for a two weeks' vacation.

The stores all closed the Fourth.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS.

A length of the new fence lately put up by the Boston & Maine on the opposite side of the tracks from the Heights station was cut out last Saturday night, and Sunday night one of the signs forbidding the crossing of the tracks was taken away. Small children have been wont to run across at this place and the efforts of the railroad to put a stop to the dangerous habit are commendable.

The home of John M. Perkins was the center of attraction at the Heights the evening of the Fourth. A quite large company assembled there to enjoy the fireworks set off by courtesy of Mr. Blake. Several balloons went up in good style and Mrs. Perkins' ice cream and cake went down with equal gusto.

Miss Nellie Swain of Brockton spent Sunday with Mrs. J. D. Wanamaker of Forest street.

The executive committee of the Baptist church held a business meeting Tuesday night at Miss Cora E. Thompson's.

Roy Beddoes, employed by Rhodes Brothers of Boston, is having a vacation.

Rev. Nelson Jones of Roslindale preached at the Baptist church last Sunday.

Miss Mabel Dow left Thursday for a two weeks' visit with friends in Brighton.

Dr. Sanford and daughter have gone to Chelmsford for a brief visit.

Mrs. Joseph Dow of Claremont avenue paid a visit this week to Mrs. Carrie Warren at her Woburn home.

The Crescent Hill club had a good display of fireworks the evening of the Fourth. Some of the club members had a parade in the early morning of the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Snow, who have been stopping at Mrs. Perkins', went to Hull Wednesday afternoon.

The Sunshine club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. C. T. Parsons of Claremont avenue.

EAST LEXINGTON.

Fourth of July this year was a remarkably quiet day by all accounts. No fires occurred and no sky-larking went on the "night before."

George Reynolds had an excellent display of fireworks the night of the Fourth.

Officer Foster has been taking a vacation the past week.

Mrs. H. M. Torrey has been entertaining Mrs. Flett of Boston several days this week.

The rails for the double track are going down rapidly. Between 30 and 40 car loads of paving stones, some twenty to thirty tons to the load have been received at the East Lexington station, for the work.

C. H. Hoffman, whose residence was recently given as North Cambridge, comes from West Somerville, instead. The fact of his taking the train at North Cambridge Junction led to the misapprehension. Mr. Hoffman has transformed the old pumping station into a remarkably convenient and cool and comfortable work shop. The eastern end of the building has been fitted up as machine shop, with the usual shafting and machinery and benches. Power is taken from a gasoline engine, which is enclosed in a little room by itself. There is some special machinery still to come. The west end of the building is to be utilized entirely for experimental work, and is not open for inspection.

Actual work is already in process on original and experimental lines, and Mr. Hoffman, while modest and unassuming in the highest degree in regard to his work, has nevertheless the air of one who knows exactly what he is about. He is specially interested in automobile engines and expects sooner or later to manufacture them, as well as stationary engines besides. The developments of the next few months will be awaited with much interest.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hadley and family have gone to Nantasket for a few weeks. Miss Nellie Sim is there also.

Miss Edna Norton of Boston is spending a few weeks with Mrs. Richards.

Mrs. M. A. Page's school class went on a picnic Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. William Sim and class were invited and all had a good time.

Mrs. Page has gone to Nantasket for a few days.

C. D. Easton preached for the Baptist society last Sunday. He will preach tomorrow, also, in Village hall.

BELMONT LOCALS.

William McCabe is pitching for the Norwood baseball team this year.

Frank Brown spent the Fourth at his cottage on Squam Lake, N. H.

H. A. Hoyt and family are occupying the George Cheney house recently purchased.

Patrick Shean was quite badly injured in a runaway accident Tuesday, the horse becoming frightened by an electric car. Three ribs were broken, but the visiting physician reports his patient as doing well.

J. P. Rogers' family are summering at Orleans, Mass.

Robert Marcy spent the Fourth at Belmont.

J. H. Fletcher's family are at Cold Spring, Westford, Mass.

T. S. Brown is in New Hampshire for a few days.

Robert Hernandez, Harry Ross, Harry Slade, and Alex Lange leave today with Company K, M. V. M., of Cambridge for camp.

Miss Rachel Johnson entertained a number of friends at her home on School street Tuesday evening at a ping-pong tournament. Wednesday she left for a week at Winthrop.

Captain Bowden, Quince street, of the J. Putnam Bradley, is in charge of the boats for the Randic excursion of the Fresh Air society this year.

A colored man named Folger has been arrested for the robbery at the house of Barnabas Benney of Sycamore street, two weeks ago. At the district court, owing to a number of conflicting stories by the defendant, he was held over to the October term of the superior court under $1600 bonds. The police expect to prove a number of similar cases at Cambridge and surrounding towns against the man.

Mrs. John H. Edwards left town

Thursday for a two weeks' outing at Gloucester, Mass.

Miss Mary A. Freeman left this week for a few weeks' stay at Meriden, N. H. Ned Parkhurst is at Damariscotta, Me. Reports assure us that "Doc" is having his usual luck at bass fishing.

J. G. Pine has purchased Marion Wilkes, a fast black pacer.

Miss Alice Barrett is at home for the summer from her duties at the Lowell normal school.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Armstrong are at South China, Me., for the summer.

Charles Jenney and family are summering at South China, Me.

The annual handicap tournament of the Belmont Tennis club was held at the courts on Thomas street July 4. The work of the handicap committee was good so that the players were well matched and the contest close.

First round—H. L. Sherman beat Rowan, by default; H. W. Horne beat Gilman, 5-7, 7-5, 8-6; Underwood beat C. G. Horne, 6-8, 6-3, 6-3; Diaz beat E. C. Sherman, 6-2, 3-6, 6-0; Harris beat Davis, 6-4, 6-3; Brown beat Atkins, by default; Dennett beat Lincoln, 5-7, 6-0, 6-3; Marcy beat Bygrave, 4-6, 6-4, 11-9.

Second round—H. L. Sherman beat H. W. Horne, 6-3, 6-1; Underwood beat Diaz, 6-4, 7-9, 6-3; Brown beat Harris, 6-4, 6-4; Dennett beat Marcy, 8-6, 3-6, 6-4.

Semi-finals—H. L. Sherman beat Underwood, 2-6, 7-5, 6-3; Brown beat Dennett, 6-3, 6-4.

Finals—Brown beat H. L. Sherman, 1-6, 6-1, 6-4.

The Belmont Tennis club are holding a "round Robin" tournament during July and August. These plays determine the individual skill of the members. Thus far Gilman beat E. C. Sherman, 6-1, 6-3, 6-4; Bygrave beat Lincoln, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4; H. C. Sherman beat E. C. Sherman, 6-0, 6-0, 6-0; Marcy beat Underwood, 6-2, 10-8, 6-3; G. C. Horne beat Gilman, 6-3, 5-7, 6-0; H. L. Sherman beat G. C. Horne, 8-6, 6-4; H. W. Horne beat Gilman, 6-3, 0-1, 0-2.

RESOLUTIONS.

Division No. 47, In Memory of John J. O'Brine.

At a meeting of Division No. 47, A. O. H., held at Knights of Columbus hall, Belmont, Monday evening, July 7, 1902, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst our beloved and esteemed brother, John Joseph O'Brine, and though sincerely mourning his loss, we bow with humble submission to his Divine will, be it Resolved, That by his death we realize Division 47, A. O. H., extend to his wife and family our sympathy in their affliction.

Resolve, That by his death we realize we have lost a true, faithful officer, and a loving friend, who at all times was ready to render his services than to serve your husband with a good, prime rib or roast of beef for his dinner. When you are perplexed as to what to get for dinner, get roast beef; it is the good old standby and always acceptable to lovers of good eating. We have everything else in standard meats and spring delicacies, and no one can undersell us.
